SINGLE TAX AND THE CURRENCY QUESTION.

subjugate another nation or tribe, gave legal right to possess the soil, and to this right was grafted the moral or equitable right. We hear many of our objectors to a change of present conditions, that would give free and equal access to land to all people, remark with a shrug of the shoulders, "do you want us to turn to barbarism?" But there is no need to return; we have always kept barbarism close in sight. We still have barbarians, intrinsic value money barbarians, at our elbow, and whoever owns land or gets the use of it, must do so through barbaric custom.

No, the question, should and must be there no escape from barbarism? What answer do I hear? I am addressing a Christian audience. An audience that has gathered here under the auspices of one of the most advanced, ethically inclined organizations the world has ever known; "The Chautauqua Assembly," whose aims are the betterment of mankind, spiritually and bodily. Will they—will you take umbrage at my reference to barbarism? If so, so much the worse for us, and the better for barbarism; it has a long or lease of oppression; we may expect growing poverty and crime to still grow, until endurance has no virtue and strife becomes the dernier resort. Listen, when my neighbor has no land, the title to mine is at once vitiated. Think of it—men owning a million acres of land, and millions of men denied the use of one foot of it—and this condition cotemporary with the declaration of organic law, and declarative purpose, that "All men are created equal and have equal right to life liberty and pursuit of happiness"—though if your happiness were to be measured by the right to run down a jack rabbit for dinner, the landlord's trespass board would warn you of the choice between an empty stomach and the police court. But, some one says, I am overdraining it, that landlord's austerity is not so emphasized, at least not in this country, and never will be. Well in some localities that may be true. There was a time when it was not true in New York or Massachusetts, or in Ireland. But there is not a state in the union that has not already the machinery of legal enactment for the purpose; nor does land ownership mean anything short of it. Well what are you going to do about it? Oh the tardiness of the question! Eighteen hundred years of christian civilization and yet the primal rights of man not determined. And who would speak of these things, in what is called a christian community, must bear the smart of social ostracism by those who lament the stolidity, ingratitude and brutality of those who eighteen hundred years ago crucified their friend and benefactor. And we are no more surprised at the self abnegation that drove Judas to the acedema, than at the tolerance of a system in this age, that makes millions of men homeless vagabonds, subsisting upon beggary or crime. Friends, how long could one enjoy your self respect and esteem, that should ruthlessly drive all the people of this country to wander homeless and without means of subsistence? Yet what better is he that in the outset deprived others of taking up similar homes? That is what land ownership is doing now. That gentleman lounging in his parlor, owns thousands of acres of idle land; he is keeping hundreds of destitute people from obtaining homes, but he is not suspected of crime; no, he is the criminal, who without a potato patch, stole a sack of meal. What are you going to do about it? Easy enough. Apply the "Single Tax." Require the holder of idle land to pay to the state (for the purpose of revenue,) as much for the privilege of holding the land idle, as is paid by those who put similar land to its best use, and abolish all other taxation. This is not depriving any present holder of the use of his land, but compels him to use it, or let some one else do so, as he or they can't afford to hold it idle when the rental value is required of every holder. This is just for it is the community as a whole, that creates the rental value of land, and a taking of economic rent by those who create it, to be used for their benefit, it is not getting something for nothing, as is the case now when a landlord is allowed to personally appropriate what belongs to the community as a whole. Such a system would require every one to pay his share of revenue in proportion to the advantages he enjoyed. If he took ten acres he would pay the value in rent, of that. If he took a hundred of similar land, he would pay ten times more. If it was gold, or silver, or iron bearing land, he would not pay as on a potato patch, but in proportion to its usable value, all things considered. A valuable lot in a city would command a higher rent than in an urban district. All, in short, would pay equal, and the value of the holdings, would be equalized by the apportionment of rent paid. Surely this can't be unjust; if so, why and where? If objectors to this system would do a little honest thinking before they object, there would be few objections. The man who has just bought a piece of land, or they who have clear titles (?) charge us with proposing to take their land away from them. But this is not so; on the contrary it would make holding for use more secure, no mortgage could ever touch it, misfortune would not eat up the title. It would give all of production to the producer, nothing to the non producers, and by producers we mean all who are engaged in any kind of useful employment; whether he wields a pen or a pick-axe; a scientific instrument or a steam engine; whether he plows the sea or the land. By this system all compensation for services done, labor employed, would be naturally and evenly proportioned, commensurate with the energy and skill employed. Strikes and lockouts would be of the past; illegitimate vocation would soon give way to honorable industry. Scrambling for office because of higher pay would disappear for other vocations would be satisfactorily remunerative. The extra hazardous employment would command the pay of the counting room.

In short, all labor would be the arbiter of its own wage. The Pullman suggestion to the lady operative would die on the lips that uttered it, and of its own shame; poverty and its commitment, crime would disappear. Peace, happiness, born of home security and plenty, would usher in a new regime so salutary that it would seem the promised kingdom were ushered in. It would be. The importance of financial reform significant as it is, dwindle into insignificance as compared with man's recognized right to a free use of land. If every form of money were in a moment converted into gold coins and the amount quadrupled, what would it better the land less ones? There might be a temporary flush of business, but it would be on y e p o y. Things would soon adjust themselves to an unimportant higher scale at prices, a few would get rich from rise in land values; land to the landless, would be harder to get and a few months at most, would bring a more disastrous epoch than the past. In the meantime the vigils of those on the watch tower of liberty would assume a careless lethargy, while the sharp unscrupulous genius of corporate and monopolistic greed, would cement more firmly the bolwars of legal enervation against the day of coming desperation of a disappointed and infuriated proletariat, and the world would behold a struggle for rights deferred, more ensanguined than ever before. Let us not deceive ourselves that while adjusting the lesser weights upon the scale of justice, we lose sight of the weightier, more important matters of the natural law, that soon must be recognized and conceded as inherent in the law or our wellbeing; the right of all to the free use of land to subsist upon, failing, a greater confusion and blood shed is imminent. Either the one or the other must and will come.

Hutchinson, Kansas, June 1895.
"I am glad the committee went after that wicked Chase," said Burton, looking pious. "None but pure men should hold office." "You are right," said the governor, as he turned the leaves of his Sunday School Times. "And no officer should be allowed to feed his private clerks from the public truck patch." "Yes," chimed in Atherton, as he slyly chewed another clove. "And there is that drunken Rogers. It makes me dizzy to think about it." And then Cy Leland's apple-jack gave one convulsive shudder and ceased working.—Eureka Messenger.

FIRE IN A STABLE.

A Disastrous Fire Occurs in a Livery Barn at Detroit, Mich.

FIVE OR SIX MEN BURNED.

Only Two Horses Were Burned to Death, the Seventy-Two in the Basement Being Uninjured—Loss About $50,000.

DETROIT, Mich., July 10.—Fire started in Case's livery barn, a four-story brick structure, No. 41 Congress street, shortly after 2 o'clock this morning. Two hours later when the firemen had succeeded in gaining control of the flames the barn was a complete wreck; five men, at least, had been burned to death or smothered, one fatally injured by jumping from the burning building, two horses burned to death, and $50,000 worth of property destroyed. Seventy-five head of horses were stabled in the building, all of them, with the exception of three, in the basement.

The fire originated on the first floor, near a box stall occupied by the trotting horse Domino, which was recently seized by the customs department for illegal entry from Canada. The horse was gotten out safely by William Douglass, one of the barn men who was on watch at the time. He also tried to rescue Ethel G, another trotter, owned by Q. A. Craves, of the Hotel Cadillac, but in this he was unsuccessful. "Little Mack," a pacer owned by George Case, was gotten out after being badly burned.

The barn men occupied quarters on the fourth floor and the flames spread so rapidly that they were unable to escape by the stairway. Ladders were raised and most of them escaped by them. One of the men, John Cummins, became frenzied and after throwing out a bundle of clothing, he threw himself headlong out of one of the windows. He landed almost at the feet of the firemen who were hastening to his rescue. He struck on the right side of his head and his skull was crushed in. He was removed to Harper hospital where he is still in an unconscious condition.

It was after 4 o'clock before the firemen were able to enter the building. They immediately made their way to the fourth floor. In a room in the northeast corner were found the bodies of John Shaw and John Bowman. They occupied the same bed and had evidently been suffocated, as there were no marks of fire on the bodies. Thomas Webb, who slept in a room in the northwest corner, was also suffocated. Then the bodies of James R. Shaw and Edward Hughes were found. These two unfortunates had evidently awakened and tried to escape, only to be caught in the flames. Both bodies were badly burned. The identity of a body supposed to be that of Hughes, is in doubt. Charles Davis, who slept on the fourth floor is missing, and he is supposed to have been burned to death.

Strangely enough, of the seventy-two horses, which were stabled in the basement, not one was injured. This was owing to the solidity of the carriage floor above them. They were found standing in about 3 feet of water and were all removed safely. Mr. Case, the proprietor of the stable estimates his loss at $50,000 and the loss on the building is about $30,000 more. Graves valued Ethel G at $1,000.

NOT LIKELY TO REBUILD.
Reid Bros. Packing House at Kansas City May Not Rise from the Ashes.
KANSAS CITY, July 10.—The prospect for rebuilding Reid Bros.' packing-house in Armourdale is very discouraging. In the past few days the company has disposed of the horses used in the operation of the plant and the wagons, machinery and other stuff worth moving is being shipped to the main plant at Indianapolis. Business men and citizens generally of Armourdale have given up hope that the company will rebuild and are quietly awaiting an announcement that some other syndicate has purchased the ground.

WAUWATOSA DEVASTATED.
A Suburb of Milwaukee Has Its Business Part Burned to Ashes.
MILWAUKEE, July 10.—Most of the business portion of Wauwatosa, a suburb of this city, with a population of about 5,000 is in ashes. Several fire engines were sent from this city to the scene early and at 8:30 o'clock the fire was under control. In all ten buildings, used for business purposes, were burned. The burned buildings include the principal business blocks of the village. The loss will reach at least $50,000.

Burned in His Cell.
LIBERTY, Mo., July 10.—At 3 o'clock this morning, Leonard Cook, a prisoner in the county jail, was burned so badly that he will probably die. The prisoners say that a lamp exploded, but the officers believe that it was part of a plan to escape from jail and that the prisoners expected to slug Night Watchman Shidell during the excitement when he entered the cell.

Appeal from Winona.
SPRINGFIELD, Mo., July 10.—A second appeal was received here yesterday from Winona asking for aid for the destitute flood victims there. The letter tells of a terrible state of affairs. The board of trade held a meeting last night to take action, and a committee was appointed to solicit money, clothing and food. The donations will be forwarded at once.

Bribery Charges Reopened.
DENVER, Col., July 10.—Alderman John R. Emery to-day instituted suits against the Rocky Mountain News and the Denver Republican for $50,000 damages from each for alleged slander. The newspapers intimated pretty broadly that Alderman Emery was corrupted by the Denver Union Water Co.

Hogs for Sale.
Thoroughbred Poland-China pigs for sale both sexes, at my farm 6 miles southeast of Haven, O. Address: W. W. HUGHES.

BOLD BOND FORGERIES.

A Smooth Ohio Broker Swindles Banks of Many Thousands.

URBANA, O., July 10.—Some months ago Z. T. Lewis came here, built a large three-story block and began a lively stock brokerage business, aggregating over $3,000,000 in the last year. Recently there were suspicions of crookedness and Monday night he disappeared. It is believed by some that he has committed suicide, but most people think that he has fled with his ill-gotten wealth.

Yesterday forged mortgages for $50,000 were sent here from Dayton, O. These were followed by bogus bonds for $15,000 from the Farmers' bank of Mechanicsburg, and for $12,000 from the Michigan Insurance Co. There is a showing already of over $100,000 fraudulent bonds held by the banks and money lenders, and it is believed the returns are not all in. These bonds are handsomely lithographed, including the official signatures to them.

The audacity of the forgeries is magnified by the fact that the bonds were all on counties and towns within a day's carriage drive from Urbana. Lewis sold none of these bonds, but used them as collateral for loans. He told a friend not long ago that he was in debt $200,000 for bonds. It is believed that at least half of these are spurious.

THE BEAUTIFUL ROCKIES.

They Contain the Grandest Scenery and the Richest Gold Mines in the Known World.

For unknown wealth in fabulous riches of gold and silver and sparkling precious gem stones, not to mention the lovely scenery, our own Rocky mountains excel any region on earth. The Illustrated Weekly, of Denver, (founded 1890) illustrates the choicest scenery each week and tells about the wonderful west. Also, true stories of love and adventure. This big family paper containing eight large pages, fifty-six columns, will be sent on trial three months (thirteen weeks) for only ten cents stamps; club of six for a dollar bill. Handsome gold rings set with beautiful Rocky mountain gems are given free as premiums. Address as above and mention THE GAZETTE when you write.

Its Free.

Do not fail to send for a free sample copy of the Weekly Globe, box 540, Denver, Colo., an illustrated home and family paper devoted to temperance, pure western stories, mining news, etc. Fifty cents per year. Send today.

"Finimore Cooper's Literary Offence" as shown in the plot and general construction of his novel the Deerslayer, together with the opinion of various critics upon Cooper's in general, forms the subject of a humorously satirical article by Mark Twain in the July number of the North American Review.

The Golden West.

Invites your attention. Fabulous fortunes have been made by judicious investments in gold mining stocks. Send a stamp for full particulars about Orycle Creek gold camp (near Pike's Peak) and full particulars about our company.
